

25February2011

Stipend Rate for Division of Biology Graduate Students

Graduate student stipends for students in the Division of Biology are currently $20,020. In order for faculty to fund graduate students in their program they must cover their stipends and the cost of their tuition and the student's fringe benefits. Therefore, the total cost to fund a student in a research program at this time is $26,511. When discussing student stipends with prospective students indicate that their stipend will be $20,020 divided amongst 26 pay periods (~$770) minus their individual tax liability and deductions.