

Philosophy of Horror

PHILO 352

This course explores philosophical questions about the horror genre, including the nature of fear and why people sometimes enjoy feeling afraid, the relationship between fear and humor, and the ethics of consuming gruesome media. We also explore common philosophical themes in horror films, with a particular focus on the horror genre as a source of social commentary on inequality, race, and gender.