We wanted to let you know that Kansas State University is moving to a simplified and streamlined tuition structure for the 2021-2022 academic year. Tuition and fees rates are now available to view online at k-state.edu/costs. The new structure goes into effect this fall.

We heard from students like you that it was difficult to determine your cost of attendance at K-State, and we wanted to make it easier for you. These positive changes within the new structure provide you with more flexibility to take courses in different formats throughout your time at the university.

Some of the changes we've made for this new structure:

- The Global Campus course fee, previously assessed on all courses taken online, has been eliminated.
- The summer/intersession fees have also been eliminated, as has the Olathe campus fee.
- The new tuition and fees structure charges by program type — campus-based or online — versus by individual course delivery format, offering you more flexibility to choose the course format that works best for you.
- We have merged the Manhattan campus academic infrastructure fee into the base tuition rate.
- Some course fees have also been merged into the existing college/departmental course fee structure, making your tuition bill easier to understand.
- Finally, we have reduced and renamed the Campus Privilege Fee assessed at our Manhattan and Polytechnic campuses. The fee's new name, the Student Services fee, better reflects what you gain from the fee assessment on these campuses.

This new tuition and fees structure is based on a redistribution of our historical tuition and fees rates. There is no increased pricing to cover higher operating costs, and no new fees are being introduced.

You can expect to see your fall billing statement in late July. Due dates will appear on the statement and the online student account center.
