10. Statement of Non-Discrimination

Smith Scholarship House is open to all men enrolled at Kansas State University’s Manhattan campus. The house will not discriminate against its members or prospective members because of race, color, ethnic or national origin, sexual orientation, religion, age, ancestry, disability, military status, veteran status, or other non-merit reasons.

The most important factors for consideration of future Smithies are enthusiasm and an attitude of cooperation. The inhabitants of this house must be willing to display this attitude of cooperation to all other house members in various situations, including day-to-day operations.

We encourage all to apply, even if you feel your grades or standardized test scores would be lower than those of other applicants or if application writing is not a particular strength. Applicant evaluations occur on an individual basis and acceptance cannot be determined until after conducting an interview.

I understand that my selection will be determined only after an interview and affirm that this application is not binding upon myself, Smith Scholarship House, or the Smith Scholarship House Alumni Association.

Furthermore, I understand that this application will not be considered complete until I have submitted a copy of my current high school or collegiate/university transcript.
