Medical expenses that were paid personally by you or your parent(s)/spouse in 2022, 2023, or 2024 can be considered through the use of the Professional Judgment Appeal. Typically, the amount of medical expenses paid is unusually high and has created a financial burden for the family. Note: The Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) protects a percentage of the student's and/or parent's income for medical expenses when determining the student's federal financial aid eligibility. For consideration, the student and parent(s)/spouse medical expenses paid must exceed the value already protected.

Submit this form if you did not include medical expenses in your itemized federal deductions. Otherwise, if you included medical expenses in your itemized deductions, please submit Schedule A from your federal tax return.

Dependent students - report medical expenses paid by the parent(s) whose income is reported on the FAFSA.
Independent students - report medical expenses paid by you and/or your spouse.
